Poem: To me it's a puppet. Or maybe a Fairy!

It's something magical that's what I believe. I think of it as someone's imagination! I think it's really pretty. It's like my own world, with all fantasy!
This is what I beuty, My Creations!

Poem: Blocks and chains dancing around,
A diamond is the distance, Flourished and serene it seems,
Life sparkling out in showers of lush colors.
Individual specks with freedom and Spring,
Fitting peice by peice,
Striking brush by brush,
Smooth and dainty,
Colors glazed and shining, Shapes turning and gazing back at you.

Poem:

Looking out the window on a snowy day staring at the frozen bay Thinking when will it be may cold breeze fogging the window Thinking when will this dee-freeze be over so I can finally stare at the clovers The smell of the maple logs in my fireplace
now the white fluff sits on the ground and turns my frown upside down
